MACAO'S THE NAME FOR SUMMER MAGIC

The city itself takes the July headlines in the arts, sport and culture

From packed arenas to centuries-old festivities, July in Macao means a city in full flow – energetic, varied and always offering new ways to experience its delights! The 3rd Macao International Children's Arts Festival (until Aug 30th) continues a tradition of colourful creativity via a wide range of performances, workshops and exhibitions to engage participants of all ages. Meanwhile, the International Youth Dance Festival 2026 (Jul 18th-23rd) draws young performers from near and far, presenting a rich variety of dance styles and forms of cultural expression. The Women's Volleyball Nations League – Finals Macao 2026 presented by Galaxy Entertainment Group (Jul 22nd-23rd and 25th-26th) is where top national teams – including China's – compete for glory at the Macao East Asian Games Dome. Events embedded in local tradition also feature in the month's line-up. The Feast of Na Tcha (Jul 2nd) and the Celebrations of Lou Pan (Jul 26th) highlight enduring elements of Chinese heritage, while the Procession of Saint Roque (Jul 12th) reflects the city's distinctive East-meets-West cultural identity. Macao's midsummer mix ensures the city is a cool place to be, even on the hottest days!

UNTIL AUG 30TH 3rd Macao International Children's Arts Festival

Colour, creativity and fun means the Macao International Children's Arts Festival is back, with an exciting programme to spark imaginations young and old. Cultural and artistic experiences on offer include live performances, art exhibitions, a film festival, creative camps, workshops, and an arts carnival as well as children's reading sessions. Families can be sure of a packed programme encouraging children and young people to explore the arts in thoughtful, interactive, but always joyful ways.

UNTIL JUL 2ND Feast of Na Tcha

The beliefs and customs associated with the deity Na Tcha (also known as "Nezha") are one of Macao's most distinctive traditions, being on China's National List of Intangible Cultural Heritage Representative Items and Macao's Inventory of Intangible Cultural Heritage. The Feast of Na Tcha, observed on the 18th day of the Chinese lunar calendar's fifth month (this year on July 2nd) features rituals and folk practices dedicated to this deity of children. A focal point of activities for the Feast of Na Tcha is Na Tcha Temple near the Ruins of St. Paul's: associated events include a parade on Macao peninsula and in Taipa. Another celebration of the festival period is the Prince Na Tcha Parade, featuring a "dragon guard" and "celestial beauties" scattering petals in abundance. It starts from the Na Tcha Ancient Temple, on Calçada das Verdades, before heading to nearby Senado Square.
